Training Seminar Responding to Trauma: Veterans, Police Officers and Communities in Crisis

Instructor:
Silouan Green

Silouan graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1991 and then accepted a commission in the United States Marine Corps. While serving in the Marines, Silouan was involved in a jet training accident. In the ejection, Silouan's back was broken and his co-pilot was tragically killed.

This horrible event and the complications that followed left Silouan a shell of a man and he descended into the hell of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, PTSD. His life in pieces, he was disability discharged and then hit the road on the back of a motorcycle for two years to look for a new beginning.

Since that journey began, Silouan has published an internationally distributed outdoors magazine, Bearfoot Magazine—Journal of Northern California Outdoors, started a successful advertising and marketing business, Silouan Green, LLC, but more importantly, has developed The Ladder UPP recovery program for PTSD and victims of trauma. The Ladder UPP takes one through the process of Silouan's recovery as a means to encourage engagement and provide simple, practical steps to beginning the journey to recovery and living free, fully alive.

Responding to Trauma: Veterans, Police Officers and Communities in Crisis

No officer hurt! No veteran hurt!
A stronger community and more resilient police department.

Course Overview:
This two day training module is taught by a Marine Corps veteran who has worked with veterans and police officers on issues of transition and service for over a decade. A survivor of a tragic jet crash as a US Marine and someone who overcame severe PTSD, he understands personally the kind of issues veterans face coming home and how to respond to them. As a mentor and teacher to many police departments and law enforcement officers across the country, he is committed to helping them all “come home”.
More and more veterans are having trouble transitioning home to our communities. While many have a healthy integration, others face a myriad of difficulties from unemployment, depression, PTSD and in some cases, destructive behavior such as domestic violence, suicide, and other disturbances.
Law enforcement is facing its own pressures: morale, budgeting, staffing, a hostile media environment, and a myriad of other issues. In many ways, their struggle to “come home” can be as challenging as that of a veteran.
This class will prepare your officers to better respond to veterans while making themselves more resilient. Combat veterans and police officers have similar lifetime rates of conditions like PTSD, and a resilient police department is the best way to prepare to respond to veterans.

- Understand the difficulties veterans face in the transition home
- Understand how PTSD develops and manifests itself in veterans
- Understand how to defuse threatening situations with veterans
- Understand why resilient officers better respond to veterans in distress
- Investigate the connection between suicide, PTSD, and the traumas of service
- Better understand the mindset of a veteran whose head is still on the battlefield
- Learn tools for helping veterans and first responders make healthy transitions from conditions of trauma
- Create a culture of resiliency and pro-active community awareness of veteran and first responder issues

Learn and use simple peer support tools that can be used in your department and your community
No military veteran or police officer should feel alone when you receive that call for services. Learn to save the life of a veteran or police officer in crisis.

The feedback from this training has been remarkable:

"As a chief and former trainer at the Pennsylvania Police Academy, I can say this is one of the top 5 classes I have ever attended."

"Eye-opening. I am better equipped to respond to veterans and look out for my fellow officers."

"This is a class every officer needs to attend."

"I never fully appreciated the difficulty many veterans have coming home until this class."

"Incredibly engaging, informative, and for a training class, entertaining."
